

Are you an immigrant or refugee woman interested in writing?

Join The Shoe Project in Vancouver this Spring

February 22 –April 26, 2018

10 meetings, Thursday nights, 5:30-8:00pm at the Museum of Vancouver

Followed by private performance coaching in May with a final performance in June 2018

What will we do?

Twelve women will work with writer Caroline Adderson to create a 600-word personal memoir about their journey to Canada. The metaphor for this journey will be a meaningful pair of shoes. The workshop is followed by voice coaching and a public performance of the stories, for those who are interested.

We'd like to talk to you if you:

- are between the ages of 18 and 80, have immigrated or come as a refugee to Canada as an adult and did not go through the Canadian school system;
- learned English as a second language;
- want to tell your story, and are interested in learning others' stories;
- want to be able to write expressively in English; and
- have worked in something to do with language – therapist, librarian, journalist, or lawyer – or just want to improve your English skills.

The Shoe Project is work and demands commitment: the program pays $400 for the right to publish the completed stories.
